NARRATED BY JOHN HARRIGAN ILLUSTRATIONS BY BRIAN BICKNELL JOHN GIEG EXECUTIVE PRODUCERS AARON CADIEUX MANNY FAMOLARE
PRODUCED BY AARON CADIEUX KRISTIN CADIEUX MANNY FAMOLARE DIRECTED BY AARON CADIEUX MANNY FAMOLARE

SYNOPSIS:

The Bridgewater Triangle sits within the Southeastern portion of Massachusetts, and includes a number of locations known for unexplained occurrences; the most prominent of which include the legendary Hockomock Swamp and the infamous Freetown/Fall River State Forest. The triangle's traditional borders are revealed by connecting the dots between the town of Abington to the North, the town of Freetown to the Southeast, and the town of Rehoboth to the Southwest.

The region hosts an unusually high volume of reports involving strange occurrences, unexplained mysteries and sinister activities. From ghostly hauntings and cryptic animal sightings, to UFO encounters and evidence of satanic ritual sacrifice, the Bridgewater Triangle serves as one of the world's most diverse hotspots for paranormal activity.

The first-ever feature-length documentary on the subject, The Bridgewater Triangle explores the history of this fascinating region. The film features a number of local residents providing first-hand accounts of unexplained occurrences. In addition, an all-star assembly of paranormal researchers, folklorists and authors provide expert analysis regarding the many mysteries of the triangle.

CAST:

LOREN COLEMAN

World-renowned cryptozoologist Loren Coleman has been researching and investigating cryptozoological mysteries since 1960. One of the world's foremost leaders in the field, Coleman has written extensively about cryptic animal encounters from all corners of the globe. In 1983, Coleman published his most famous work, Mysterious America. In a chapter detailing his findings in Southeastern Massachusetts, Coleman dubbed the region, "The Bridgewater Triangle".

ALAN ALVES

Known as the "Cult Cop", retired Freetown Police Lieutenant Detective Alan Alves spent much of his career investigating satanic activity in the Freetown State Forest region. Often regarded as an expert on satanic crime, Alves has served as a consultant on cases involving satanic crime from all corners of the globe. During his many years of service on the Freetown Police Department, Alves witnessed many strange and disturbing things.

CHRISTOPHER BALZANO

Paranormal researcher and author Chris Balzano has been investigating paranormal activity in the New England region for a number of years. Recently, Balzano released two books detailing accounts of paranormal activity within the Bridgewater Triangle. 2007's Dark Woods: Cults, Crime, and the Paranormal in the Freetown State Forest, and 2008's Ghosts of the Bridgewater Triangle, are two informative sources for readers interested in learning more about the Bridgewater Triangle.

JEFF BELANGER

Jeff Belanger is one of the most visible paranormal researchers today. He has authored over a dozen books including Weird Massachusetts, and has written articles for The Boston Globe. He also serves as the series writer and researcher for Ghost Adventures on the Travel Channel. Belanger is all-too-familiar with the many stories surrounding the Bridgewater Triangle.

JOHN BRIGHTMAN

New England Paranormal Research founder and author, John Brightman, has been investigating strange occurrences in the Bridgewater Triangle for over a decade. Recently, Brightman published Dark Gift, a fictional novel based on his numerous investigations in the Freetown State Forest.

JOSEPH DEANDRADE

In the winter of 1978, Joseph DeAndrade encountered what he described as a “tall, furry, man-like creature”, at Clay Banks Pond in Bridgewater, MA. DeAndrade has since devoted his life to proving the existence of the “Bigfoot of Bridgewater”, and investigating the many mysteries of the Bridgewater Triangle.

DEREK GUNN

Derek Gunn is an independent researcher, artist, writer and musician. In 1993, he began researching the Bridgewater Triangle, UFO and cryptid reports and other anomalous phenomena from the Bay State. He is currently working on his first book Amazing Massachusetts which will be the culmination of his research.

LUANN JOLY

Whaling City Ghosts founder Luann Joly has been drawn to the paranormal from a very young age. In 2012 she published Dead Whispers, Ghostly EVPs, a book and audio CD featuring a large collection of electronic voice phenomenon recordings obtained during her many investigations.

ANDREW LAKE

Andrew Lake has been researching Southern New England hauntings for a number of years. In 2011, Lake released Ghosthunting Southern New England, a book detailing his experiences in some of the region’s most haunted locations. Lake has spent much of his time investigating reports of ghosts in Rehoboth, Massachusetts.

MIKE MARKOWICZ

Mike Markowicz is a Massachusetts-based Electronic Voice Phenomenon (EVP) specialist. A leader in the field, he has been featured on a number of radio and television programs including WBSM radio's Spooky Southcoast. In 2009 Markowicz released EVP: Electronic Voice Phenomenon: Massachusetts Ghostly Voices, a book and audio CD featuring a number of his EVP recordings, including some recordings captured within the Bridgewater Triangle.

CHRIS PITTMAN

Paranormal researcher Chris Pittman has been investigating odd occurrences in Southeastern Massachusetts for a number of years. With an extensive background in the study of both UFOs and archeology, Pittman is regarded as one of the foremost authorities on all aspects of the Bridgewater Triangle.

TIM WEISBERG

Tim Weisberg had some of his first paranormal experiences in the Bridgewater Triangle, which ultimately led him to create Spooky Southcoast, one of the world's most popular paranormal radio shows. A journalist by trade, Tim has also authored two books, including Ghosts of the SouthCoast, which features hauntings within the Bridgewater Triangle.

CREW:

AARON CADIEUX, CO-DIRECTOR

Aaron Cadieux is an award-winning documentary filmmaker from Dartmouth, Massachusetts. In 2003, he produced and directed a 30-minute documentary titled, Inside The Bridgewater Triangle. The experience inspired him to someday produce and direct a feature-length documentary on the same subject. In 2010, he teamed up with filmmaker Manny Famolare to begin production on The Bridgewater Triangle. Cadieux also owns and operates Bristol County Media LLC (and its subdivision Big Operations Productions) a company specializing in video production services. As the Co-Director of The Bridgewater Triangle, Aaron combines his extensive experience in documentary filmmaking and video production with his love for Halloween and things that go bump in the night.

MANNY FAMOLARE, CO-DIRECTOR

Manny Famolare is a lifelong Bridgewater Triangle area resident. He has always had an interest in the paranormal and, by coincidence, eventually learned that he was living in the heart of the Bridgewater Triangle. Famolare has since been investigating the triangle area for over 25 years. He has been featured on radio shows such as Visions of the Past, Voices of the Unknown, Ghost Chronicles, and Spooky Southcoast. A passionate artist, Famolare's photography has been published in countless New England newspapers and online websites including the Newport Daily Times, the Brockton Enterprise, the Taunton Gazette and the Patriot Ledger. As the Co-Director of The Bridgewater Triangle, Famolare combines his passion for tales of the bizarre and his love of the camera.

JOHN "JOHNNY" DESOUSA, PRODUCTION ASSISTANT

John "Johnny" DeSousa is a Jack-of-all-trades. He is an accomplished cook and carpenter, and a seasoned outdoorsman. Johnny's love of the wilderness helped to spark his interest in the paranormal, as he and longtime friend Manny Famolare spent their younger days investigating many secluded locations within the Bridgewater Triangle. Johnny served as a production assistant during the production of The Bridgewater Triangle, and remains a vital asset to the team.

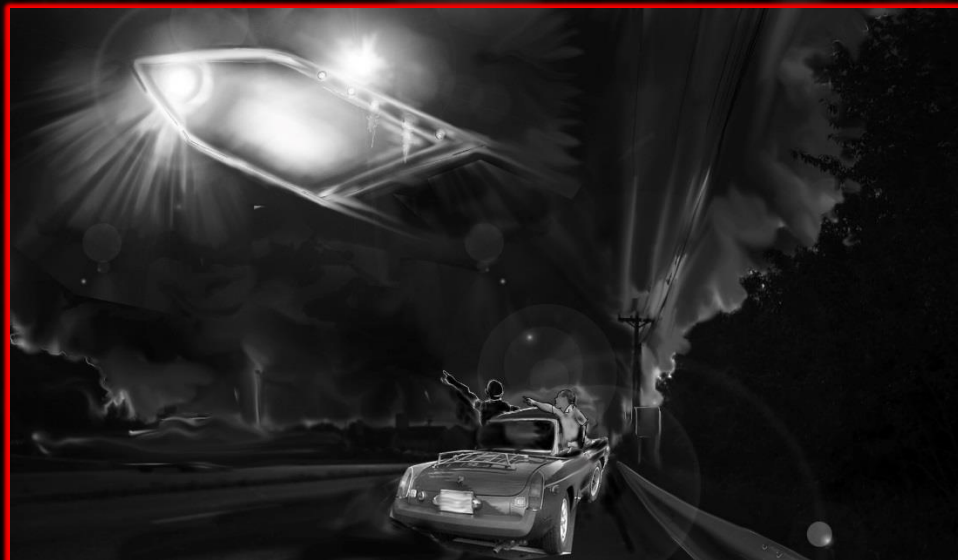

JOHN HERRIGAN, NARRATOR

John Horrigan is an accomplished professional sports announcer, program manager, internet entrepreneur, television host and historical lecturer. He has extensive experience researching and exploring paranormal phenomena across North America and Great Britain, and the Bridgewater Triangle is a region that has served as the backdrop for a number of his lectures and tours. In 2006, Horrigan produced and narrated the audiobook Mysterious Bridgewater Triangle that featured commentary from Chris Balzano and Chris Pittman. Horrigan provides the narration for The Bridgewater Triangle documentary.

BRIAN BICKNELL, ILLUSTRATOR

Brian Bicknell is a commercial artist and illustrator whose work has appeared in commercials and movies both in the United States and internationally, he has collaborated on projects for comics, graphic novels, book covers, television, and movies as a co-writer, illustrator, and storyboard artist. Brian founded his own illustration company Bicknell Designs in 2005 and A-52, his first self-written and illustrated Graphic Novel, will be exhibited at the 2014 Comicon in New York City. Brian was classically trained in Illustration, and graphic design in Boston MA., and cannot remember a time when he was not drawing or sketching. He currently resides with his family on the North Shore of Massachusetts.

THE MAKING OF:

The Bridgewater Triangle documentary was a movie decades in the making. Each of the film's co-directors grew up near one of the triangle's most infamous locations. As a resident of East Bridgewater, Manny Famolare had heard bizarre stories of cryptic animal sightings in the nearby Hockomock Swamp. Meanwhile, as a resident of North Dartmouth, Aaron Cadieux was well aware of the neighboring Freetown-Fall River State Forest's sinister reputation. As they matured, Famolare and Cadieux each came to know the concept of the Bridgewater Triangle through reading publications from leading researchers like Loren Coleman and Christopher Pittman.

In 2003, while studying video production at Fitchburg State College, Aaron Cadieux produced Inside the Bridgewater Triangle. Never intended to be anything more than a practice film, the 30-minute documentary quickly developed a cult following, resulting in a constant stream of enthusiasts looking to purchase the film. Though he could never sell the student film, Cadieux knew that he would someday like to revisit the topic and produce a feature-length documentary. Almost a decade later, with years of filmmaking experience under his belt, and a full-service video production company at his disposal, Cadieux began laying the foundation to realize his vision.

In 2010, after years of feverishly researching various odd occurrences in the Bridgewater Triangle, Manny Famolare, a passionate photographer and videographer, decided to begin the process of making his own documentary on the subject. Through the wonder of the Internet, Famolare and Cadieux would stumble across each other's plans. After several friendly exchanges, the two agreed to join forces and produce a single comprehensive piece. By 2011, production on The Bridgewater Triangle was well underway.

After almost three years of filming, scriptwriting and researching, postproduction on The Bridgewater Triangle began in January of 2013. Ten months later, with a world-premiere already scheduled, the film was completed. Throughout the film's production, a series of newspaper articles, radio appearances and television segments combined to raise the public's awareness of the documentary's impending release. The Bridgewater Triangle debuted on Sunday October 20th, 2013 to a sell-out crowd of over 750 people at the University of Massachusetts Dartmouth. Soon after, the film played to another sell-out crowd of over 450 people at Bridgewater State University. The Bridgewater Triangle continued to screen at a series of sold-out local venues months after its October premiere. As word spread about the film, the media coverage continued, including features in Rue-Morgue magazine, on WCVB's Chronicle and on the nationally broadcasted radio show Coast to Coast AM. The response to The Bridgewater Triangle has been overwhelmingly positive. A series of favorable reviews have been written, and word-of-mouth recommendations from people who have seen the film have helped to fill the seats at the various showings thus far.

Making The Bridgewater Triangle was a labor of love filled with both moments of pure exhilaration and sheer frustration. The filmmakers were fortunate enough to interview a number of leading researchers and authors in the paranormal field including: Loren Coleman, Christopher Balzano, Jeff Belanger and Christopher Pittman. Reinforcing an impressive panel of experts was a series of interviews with a number of first-hand eyewitnesses to odd occurrences in the region. But as with the vast majority of independent films, budget was always a concern. From the beginning, one of the many goals of the filmmakers was to produce the documentary out of pocket, without relying on outside funding such as grants, or a Kickstarter campaign. The team had to be resourceful every step of the way to avoid large expenses, such as paying hefty sums of money to secure the rights to newspaper articles. Also, to keep costs in line, every aspect of production was kept in house. The research, writing, directing, producing, cinematography, sound recording, sound design, editing and special effects were all achieved by The Bridgewater Triangle team.

The Bridgewater Triangle is a unique film within the paranormal genre. The theory of the triangle is examined from a very neutral, journalistic standpoint. The objective of film is to present the reports of odd occurrences and unexplained mysteries from the region in a way which allows viewers to make their own determinations regarding the legitimacy of the Bridgewater Triangle's existence.
